

“GATHER THE WOMEN...”*
LEADING DEEP RIVER GROUPS

A Distance Facilitator Training via teleconference & internet

My experience (and that of many others) is that women in a circle of support are a source of untapped power. When this power is nurtured, it can fuel personal growth and help counter the effects of our speed-obsessed culture. The purpose of the Deep River Facilitator Training is to give helping professionals and others who wish to work with women, the tools and support to create Deep River groups wherever they are, around the United States and around the world.

The distance course consists of four phone calls (see tentative dates & times below*) plus interaction on a participants-only website. All calls will be recorded (for participants only) and can be downloaded if a meeting is missed. The course will include didactic training, discussion, Q&A, and practice facilitation. Attendance at a 7-week or day-long Deep River group is a prerequisite.
